NCCP Young Leaders is a community of young professionals and graduate students. Through a combination of outreach, education, community service and fundraising initiatives, NCCP Young Leaders generate new and creative ways to continue NCCP’s mission of promoting the economic security, health, and wellbeing of America’s low-income families and children.
What NCCP Young Leaders Do

Serve – Young Leaders plan and participate in ongoing and one-time volunteer opportunities to assist NCCP in promoting its mission.

Educate – Young Leaders educate their families, peers and the public about critical issues facing children and families in poor and low-income households.

Promote – Young Leaders further NCCP’s outreach strategy on behalf of children and families in need.

Have Fun – Through their outreach events, including outdoor activities, after-work social networking events, and other opportunities, NCCP Young Leaders not only work towards helping a dedicated organization achieve important state and federal policy improvements on behalf of children and families in need, but they also join other like-minded individuals, locally and around the country, who believe in the mission of economic security, health and wellbeing of America’s families and children.

Become a Young Leader

Join our vibrant community of young professionals and graduate students in the New York area who make a difference by supporting NCCP’s vital work. Your involvement will help support NCCP’s mission by bringing our message to local communities through outreach, education, community service, and fundraising.

Sign up today at www.nccp.org/youngleaders_ny.html, or fill in your name, address and email address on the sign-in sheet provided.
Who We Are

The National Center for Children in Poverty (NCCP) was founded in 1989 as a division of the Mailman School of Public Health at Columbia University, and is a nonpartisan, public interest research organization. NCCP is one of the nation’s leading public policy center dedicated to promoting the economic security, health, and well-being of America’s low-income families and children. NCCP uses research to inform policy and practice with the goal of ensuring positive outcomes for the next generation. We promote family-oriented solutions at the state and national levels. Our vision: family economic security; strong, nurturing families; and healthy child development.

National Center for Children in Poverty
215 West 125th Street, Third Floor
New York, NY 10027
646-284-9600
www.nccp.org
info@nccp.org